To whom it may concern,

It is my pleasure to recommend Mr. Asaf Delmedigo, whom I have had the privilege to supervise at the Israel Central Bureau of Statistics. In his role as Head of Branch within the Department of Surveys, Asaf has consistently shown exceptional initiative, analytical depth, and a rare ability to turn machine learning and AI technologies into operational impact.

Asaf laid the foundation for transforming our document processing workflows by designing and deploying a convolutional neural network that automatically classifies and organizes scanned financial reports with over 97 percent accuracy. This innovation replaced an expensive manual process, reducing processing time from six months to under three hours and generating substantial savings.

Recognizing his expertise, I appointed Asaf as my advisor on artificial intelligence matters to guide CBS's early adoption of AI. In this capacity, he pioneered several strategic initiatives, including the development of a vision-language model that extracts structured information from complex Hebrew financial reports, paving the way for large-scale automation of financial data collection and analysis at CBS.

Beyond his technical strengths, Asaf is reliable, collaborative, and meticulous. He brings clarity to complex problems and follows through to production.

I wholeheartedly recommend Mr. Asaf Delmedigo for any opportunity where he can advance data-driven innovation and organizational excellence.

Sincerely,

Prof. Yaron Felus
